THE lot of the unemployed British sailor in

- an Eastern port is not a desirable one. Something has been done for him in the establishment of Sailors' Homes, but not sufficient to prevent him from frequently being found in a destitute and forlorn-condition by the police. Descitution, unforby the police authorities, and the unbappy future development and position of this great man who has spent his last cent, unless he uncertaking, which under the able management manages to get taken in at the Home, stands of the chief director, M. Privy Councillor Tietyen, appears to have a bright future in some risk of being marched off to other and less prospect. I am not yet able or at liberty to welcome quarters -- the gaol. Now it cannot give any fuller details, but shall do so when I be denied that our sailors are, as a class, most careless, unthrifty, and improvident. They usually succeed in dissipating the earnings of (Sept. 11th), 8 days and 4 hours from Singapore, months in a few days or, at most, weeks which place she left on the 3rd instant. first instance, it was the man's fault that he was out of employment, but it was his misthe Home. It may also be true that many of these unemployed seamen are not really anxious to get a ship at all, but prefer loafing about on shore, so long as they can pic up enough for their immediate wants by begging. Such fellows are undeniably nuisance to the community, and the police do well to look after them sharply. But there are others who are simply unfortunate, and unavoidably out of employment. distinction should be made in the case of such and it is satisfactory to notice that Mr. Stewart is quite alive to the fact. He remarked; in a recent case, that mon wh came to the Colony seeking work and failed to obtain admission at the Home could bardly be looked on as rogues and vagabonds. Just so, and hence it needs some stealing his umbrella. discrimination on the part of the police, when making such arrests. It is a great pity, by playment, he gave him shelter. In prosecutor's the way, that there is not a Shipwrocked absence be stole ble umbrella, valued at $8.15. and Destitute Mariners' Aid Society here, which could investigate into the cases of unemployed seamon, and render the deserving returned to Hongkong. The cutor's who happened to go up to Canton in the Sarlors' Home is an excellent institution, but his possession, returning to Hongkong be told it might well be supplemented by the aid of prosecutor of it and said be had seen prisoner such a society. This would, of course, have to be supported by voluntary contributions, informer were sent to Canton and redeemed ship James Aikiz, charged James Brown and but there are many residents in the Colony | the umbrella and the bangle, the prisoner having | Thomas Higgans, seamen, with being drunk and who take a sincere interest in the welfare of the mariner, and would probably be well disposed to give help in this direction. Jack is often enough in trouble through his own tolly, and it is to be feared that acquaintance with the interior of a gaol is not the readiest means of reforming him. It is, therefore, the more desirable that he should be saved from all unnecessary detention or interfer-

PAYMENT by results is per se an excellent thing. Why, then, should it not be applied to the Hongkong police force? To some extent this has been done, and the manuer of the application shows to great advantage the enlightenment of the Government of this Colony. Thus, if a constable arrests a wandering dog, he is entitled to ten cents; if he catches an old woman with a few twigs in her hand he gets two dollars; if be catches a murderer roll-handed it is presumed he will dren. On the 4th September he came again get nothing. Soldiers have been heard to complain that if they should have a leg or an arm shot off they would get a pension, while if they should have the misfortune to lose their head they would get nothing, and yet they had much rather lose their arm than their head. There is a certain semblance of logic here, which one looks for in vain in the regulations of the Hongkong police force Above all things let us have consistency. In connection with the twigs it might perhaps be advisable to pay by the inch, that is, to have the twigs measured and the payment made upon the measurement. Then, the system having been found to work well, it might be extended to other departments. In the drunk department, for instance, the inebriates brought before the magistrates might be ranged under different heads such as : drunk, very drunk, drunk and incapable, drunk and disorderly. This would constitute : nice sliding scale, upon which the police SAN FRANCISCO Mr. L. P. Fisher, 21, Merchants could be paid, and it would probably assist the magistrate in the discharge of his duty. It might fairly be left to the constable to place his prisoner in the class to which he properly belonged, and the magistrate could then more readily apportion punishment in accordance with the gravity of the offence. Good advice is proverbially liable to be disregarded, and it can hardly to supposed that the suggestions here thrown out, will be acted upon. It does seem, however, that the principle of payment by results has been adopted in the Hongkong police force to either too great or to an absurdly small extent. To far too great an extent, it seems to us. Good as the principle may be in the abstract, it is not applicable in this instance. Merit should be rewarded by promotion, or SHIPS' MEDICINE CHESTS REFITTED. by special rewards in special cases, but to hold out petty bribes to constables to devote their attention to certain offences, which it is as much their duty to attend to as others which they are not rewarded for detecting, is unworthy of the times. It is most desirable that the vegetation of the colony should be specially protected, but if a certain number of men were told off for this purpose it
